Heron, Heron up

Starting from a flat surface, studying proportions, corners and connections: a game of geometry. A balanced proportion of thin planes, surfaces which bend to reinvigorate the frame, joining together and enhancing the stretched lines that follow the entire perimeter, extending in total lightness and airiness where the rear legs are connected. The word heron as the name for this chair was chosen for a significant reason: lightness is the surprising characteristic of this chair, given by the geometry of the seat and backrest and remarkably enhanced by the legs, consisting of slim metal wires that curve where they hit the ground. Made with metal legs or fully upholstered. Available also in the version Heron up, with a higher backrest.
